sources, surrounded a number of British troops. The British, using their tanks, repulsed the Nazis in a heavy battle in the streets.

At every corner, the British reformed German tanks and machine gun squads attacked the British forces as they fought to bring the town back into British hands. The British troops were finally forced to retreat.

The Imperial troops finally broke a path through the enemy and escaped under a bombardment of heavy artillery. The British then moved up an heroic rear-guard battle that delayed the German advance. It was stated that the British were still in the town.

FIGHT WAY CLEAR

Groups of Australian soldiers held out the over-coming mountainous and the British in the German range. They quashed their first with melted snow and survived on short rations. Finally fighting their way through the New Zealand troops fighting at the airport, they escaped.

In a battle near the coast, the Allies tracked back over the mountains and passed to Larina where they were surrounded by fast-moving German armored troops.

Here again they fought their way back to the mountainous terrain of the week of almost continuous battle.

Press Is Adopting Tone Of Resignation

LONDON, April 21—(CP)—The press adopted an editorial tone of resignation today as German battle reports told of a further allied withdrawal in the face of the crushing Nazi juggernaut.

The country in the meantime anticipated a statement by Prime Minister Churchill, the first since the outbreak of the house of commons, some sources believed, however, that the prime minister's statement may be only a brief review of the situation.

Other morning papers related previous warnings about the German advance. The Daily Telegraph, for example, said that the British were being forced to retreat in the face of the German advance. The Daily Express, on the other hand, said that the British were being forced to retreat in the face of the German advance.

16 NAZI PLANES ARE SHOT DOWN BY R.A.F. CRAFT

CATRO, Egypt, April 21—(AP)—At least 16 German aircraft were shot down in Greece yesterday, the biggest loss in one day since the German army began its offensive, the Royal Air Force Middle East command announced today.

Fourteen of the Nazi planes were destroyed in one big battle over Athens in which a "very large number" of German troops were engaged.

Seven of the German planes shot down were of the type known as Ju 88 dive bombers. The British planes were reported lost, but three of the pilots were safe.

In addition, German-occupied Athens and other points on the coast were attacked by British aircraft. The British aircraft were reported to have shot down 16 German planes. The British aircraft were reported to have shot down 16 German planes.

AFTER DUCE'S VETO OF ALEXANDRIA BATTLE

British 'Taranto' Raid Is Indictment Of Fascism

Italian Navy Lay Helpless,
Trapped By Fuel Shortage

Staying in power is more important to the Fascists than building an efficient army.

Not only must Mussolini keep the blackshirt militia, he must also see that the highest posts in the army go to generals who are politically friendly.

That explains why the work of the Italian general staff is criminally incompetent.

The general staff on the eve of Italy's entry into the war was packed with officers who would not oppose Mussolini's Axis policy on military considerations, and who had no other qualifications for the task.

Let me illustrate the results of inefficiency:

Two steamships in Trieste were requisitioned by the Italian general staff and ordered to proceed urgently to NAPLES, where they were to pick up troops for Libya.

At Naples there were no troops ready for transport. The local military commander rejected the war ministry, which replied that it had no record or knowledge of the two steamships.

To my own knowledge those two ships lay in NAPLES harbor for six weeks while troops in GENOA waited vainly for transports.

This illustration is typical rather than exceptional.

Duce Didn't Keep The Navy

In Running Shame

What fascism has done to the Italian navy is even more tragic and the gallant corps of professional naval officers hang their heads today in shame.

For years the navy has been run on political considerations and the personal whims of Mussolini, rather than upon the recommendations of professional officers.

In order to bargain diplomatically, Mussolini constructed 122 submarines when officers cried for more money for submarine personnel.

In the fleet review for Hitler which I watched several years ago, 90-odd submarines were on parade, but a submarine commander told me later that 13 of them were under the command of women and that the admiralty had held its breath for fear that these petty officers with no training in navigation might wreck them all.

An Italian admiral once said to me, "We can get a new battleship out of Mussolini but we can't get the paint to keep the old ones in condition."

Thus, half the gun crews of the Italian navy have never fired the guns themselves.

British target practice requires the relining of the gun tubes about once a year. Italian battleships and cruisers have gone six years without the necessity of relining the tubes, while Italian naval officers have burned their hearts out in anticipation of the failure of their gun crews once actual battle was joined.

By way of recognizing the gallantry and loyalty of these helpless officers Mussolini sent orders early in the war that commanders must go down with lost ships—an unheard-of thing.

A half-dozen officers who can never be replaced consequently have blown their brains out on the bridges of Italian cruisers and destroyers after actions the gallantry of which the British have recognized.

They Had A Big Chance

But Duce Said No

Naval officers who gladly die for their country have never been given a chance.

I talked in the second month of the war with one who later died on the bridge of his destroyer after he had torpedoed a British cruiser against which it was suicide to go.

"In the first weeks we had a chance to smash the British navy a crippling blow," he said.

"We may have wanted to give the submarine and destroyer force into the harbor of Alexandria. We would have taken heavy losses, of course, but we could have sunk British capital ships and cruisers. We could have moved toward them in the sea since we would have been able to put six capital ships of our own out in the Mediterranean."

"Mussolini flatly refused. He was confident of quick victory. He wanted the fleet intact for bargaining with Hitler at the peace."

"Now it is too late for that type of action. Now we are short of fuel oil."

"Now we have orders not to go fight to the British fleet because of the fuel shortage and the political repercussions of the British shelling of our coastlines if we should lose our capital ships."

"My God!" said the statement in the fact that since then, at Taranto on the night of Nov. 11 and in the Ionian sea in the early evening of Mar. 28, the British have sunk or crippled four of Italy's six battleships.

Taranto, one of the most impressive, if least important naval defeats in history, is less a reflection on the Italian navy than an indictment of fascism.

The Italian ships were trapped in harbor. Short of fuel, they did not have steam up because of the direct orders of Mussolini. They were caught flat-footed.

"Why don't they at least let us go out and lose our ships fighting?"

In the more recent debacle in the Ionian sea, Italy paid the penalty for Mussolini's refusal to build aircraft carriers.

Caught unawares off Cape Matapan, the Fascist navy saw three of its cruisers and two of its destroyers sunk, and a battleship of the Littorio class crippled by the British Mediterranean fleet, which itself suffered no losses and was fortifiably supported by planes from the powerful aircraft carriers Illustrious and Eagle.

In John T. Whitaker's unexcused article Wednesday, April 21, he tells how Fascist politicians have wrecked what once was Italy's most powerful weapon—the air force.

Text Of King,
Roosevelt Statement

(AP)—Here is the text of a joint statement by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada discussing plans for effective utilization of defense production facilities of their two countries.

Among other important matters, the president and the prime minister discussed measures by which the most prompt and effective utilization might be made of the production facilities of North America for the purposes both of local and hemisphere defense and of the assistance which, in addition to their own programs, both Canada and the United States are rendering to Great Britain and the other democracies.

PROGRAMS CO-ORDINATED

It was agreed as a general principle that in mobilizing the resources of this continent, each country should provide the other with the defense article which is best able to produce and, where all produce quickly, and that production programs should be co-ordinated to this end.

"While Canada has expanded its productive capacity many fold since the beginning of the war, there are still numerous defense articles which it must obtain in the United States, and purchases of this character by Canada will be even greater in the coming year than in the past."

"On the other hand, there is existing and potential capacity in Canada for the speedy production grilly required by the United States.

They mentioned certain kinds of munitions, strategic materials, aluminum and ships.

While technical and financial details remain to be worked out, it was understood between the leaders of the two nations that Canada would receive payment for the supplies as so to meet part of the cost of Canadian defense purchases in the United States.

Canadian purchases, the joint statement said, would be even greater in the coming year than in the past.

Insofar as Canada's defense purchases in the United States consist of component parts to be used in equipment and munitions which Canada is producing for Great Britain, the statement said, it was also agreed that Great Britain would obtain these parts under the lease-lend act and forward them to Canada for inclusion in the finished article.

The statement also said the declaration for utilization effectively of production facilities was "among other important matters" which the president and prime minister discussed in their meeting in Washington today, but the prime minister said that the joint statement was not disclosed, but there were numerous other topics which the president and prime minister could have considered.

BROAD DISCUSSION

In taking a joint statement, the heads of the neighboring nations who are old friends, followed a procedure used last summer when they met at Ogdensburg, N.Y., and announced formation of a joint, permanent defense board for their countries.

The statement last night was given to reporters shortly before the two statements went their different ways. Mr. Roosevelt was heading back to Washington and Mr. King to Ottawa.

It was believed the president and Mr. King discussed topics ranging from Canada's financial position, the final plan of the Canada-United States joint defense board and steps that might be taken by Washington to relieve the shipping position in the Atlantic. In this regard, the possibility was discussed by observers that Halifax would be removed from the Canadian defense board and replaced by the prime minister.

The prime minister arrived in Poughkeepsie early in the afternoon from New York and was directed to Hyde park in a White House car.

The conference started soon after his arrival at the Roosevelt family home on the Hudson.

It was the meeting between the two men in the last few days, they had been in Washington last Wednesday. They planned then to continue their discussions either in Warm Springs, Ga., or Washington today, but the prime minister said that the joint statement was not disclosed, but there were and came to see the president in Hyde park.

High up on the list of subjects under review, it was understood, was Canada's ability to construct heavy financial commitments for war supplies in the United States and the possibility, later in the year, of some form of assistance by Washington.

Canada is faced with a deficit on American account of at least $200,000,000 and more likely $300,000,000 in the current fiscal year, due to big purchases of war supplies in the United States. It has been understood that as difficulties are being encountered at the present time in meeting American commitments, but they will grow bigger later in the year when Canada's wartime industrial machine approaches maximum production and some actuals are probably well beyond.

DEFENSE BOARD
At a meeting, Montreal last night, the Canada-United States joint defense board completed its plans to protect the two countries from invasion or hostile actions. This board, the subject of several discussions between the prime minister and the president before he actually was established at Ogdensburg, N.Y., meeting last year, may have recommended action by the two countries that, moderate discussion and review by the statesmen.

In any event, it was considered probable the board entered the discussions because it represents something about which both men are keenly interested, continental defense.

The prime minister, after seeing the president in Washington, went to Virginia Beach, Va., intending to remain there until Monday. Why he changed his plans and cut short his American trip remained unknown here, but it was believed the reason was the precarious position of the Allies in the Balkans and the possibility of rapid developments there and in North Africa.

TO MEN WHO ARE NOT LAZY...

But Just Can't Get Going

You say you are not the man you used to be? Check up on yourself in the mirror. If your eyes are muddy and dull and your tongue's coated as well, then you're not as well as you should be.

But there are other symptoms. Food doesn't interest you. Little things get on your nerves. You fall asleep when you should be awake. You try to get out of visiting friends or going to the movies. Worse, you are too tired for your job. You're not lazy—you just can't get going.

What's the cause? Your blood stream isn't clear. There are toxins in it. Poisonous wastes in your system. Get rid of it. Kruschen is the thing for that.

There are several mineral salts in Kruschen, balanced in exact proportions to assist the organs of excretion to get rid of waste matter every day. Kruschen is more than a laxative. It is a discreet way of helping to flush the kidneys and at the same time keeps the colon moist, so that action is easy and gentle. A pinch of Kruschen every morning will do you good.

Kruschen costs only 25c or 50c, at all drug stores. Good health for less than a cent a day.

THE COW THAT STANDS ON ITS TAIL!
The manatee - or sea-cow -
Found in the Amazon and Orinoco Rivers.
HAS A STRANGE HABIT OF STANDING ON ITS TAIL!

EXPLANATION OF TODAY'S CARTOON

THE COW THAT STANDS ON ITS TAIL: The animal's name is the manatee or sea cow. It is a large aquatic animal which belongs to the same order of mammals as the dog. It lives along the coast of Africa, South America, and the West Indies. It is often found in lagoons and estuaries of rivers, where it obtains most of its food. It browses on aquatic plants while standing upright on the curve of its tail. The sea cow has no hind legs and it is from eight to thirteen feet long. It has small flippers on its forelimbs. The skin of a sea cow is gray-black and sparsely provided with bristles. The tail is rounded. It eats with its upper lip which acts like a pair of pliers. The sea cow has been hunted considerably for its flesh and oil. This explanation submitted by Lamar Glick, 12, of Folsom, Georgia, one of the 100 winners of Believe It or Not books for best answers to question "What Cow Stands On Its Tail?"

Syndicate Formed At Last To Take Over Boston Bees

BOSTON, April 21.—(AP)—President Bob Quinn of Boston Sunday night announced the successful completion of his five month campaign to form a syndicate to purchase C. F. Adams' controlling interest in that National League baseball club, which represents about 73 per cent of the stock.

Quinn said all but two of his new associates are new Englanders, the club manager, and his business friend, Max Mayer, Boston Pearl manufacturer.

The others are Francis Quinn of Boston, former National Guard and Amateur Golf champion, Joseph Conway, president of a Boston sporting goods firm, Dr. William Brand of Middlebury, Conn., J. W. Powell, a Danvers, Conn., manufacturer, and Richard Haverly, owner of a Boston automobile firm.

Quinn said the syndicate will be formed by the purchase of Adams' controlling interest. It has frequently been mentioned that the latter's price was about $300,000.

In addition to putting up enough funds to pay Adams in cash, Quinn said that the members of the syndicate also would provide the club with new working capital.

JOCKEY PULLED SO MANY HORSES GETS MIXED UP

LOS ANGELES, April 21.—(AP)—Jockey Leonard Scott pulled off so many mounts on western tracks that he early yesterday when he was pulled for whom.

Scott testified at the trial of five men charged with conspiring to corrupt horse racing that he had previously been pulled for whom.

In the spring of 1933, he said, he pulled a horse at the request of Jockey Willie Ward. Ward had suffered pulling horses at $300 each.

There were so many guys coming in all the time and asking me to pull horses that I sometimes can't remember which horse I pulled for whom," Scott testified.

"I pulled horses for William Quinn, Saul and other fellows," Scott testified, "and for Ward at different times and I get all mixed up."

Scott testified that he had pulled horses for William Quinn, Saul and other fellows, and for Ward at different times and I get all mixed up.

pays to grow better potatoes, and one of the most important factors in the growing of better potatoes is the selection and preparation of the soil.

The seed bed should be prepared and thoroughly worked before planting. This will result in pulverized soil, in which moisture will be evenly distributed.

For this work the cultivator should find no use. And the

RED CHEVRONS RECOUNT EPIC STAND IN WAR

Heroic Part In Battle Of Ypres Recalled At Banquet

On the night of April 22, 1915, machine guns blazed heavily artillery roared, and poison gas clouded the air as the Canadian Tenth Battalion fought the battle of Ypres. This page in the history of Canada's part in the First World War was recalled Saturday evening at a banquet given by the Red Chevrons Club gathered at the Royal George Hotel for their annual banquet in honor of those who fell at that Ypres battle.

Before the dinner, members retired to the Cathedral led by Pipe-Majors Living and Robertson, where an Imperial member of the club played a waltz.

Scheduled speaker, Col. F. J. Jamieson, officer commanding the military training centre at Red Deer, was unable to be present. Taking his place, A. E. Nield, commander and past-president of the Red Chevrons here, held the first of the history of the organization, from its inception in 1915 to the present. He paid tribute to the men of the club who had made their contribution in all that length of time.

Speakers included: Lt. Col. E. Brown, M.M.E.D., acting-commander of the club and the new Pipe-Majors; C. J. A. Smith, officer commanding the South Sea Battalion, V.V.R., who related the value of comradeship in the war and the courage and heroism of the club; and John Smith, C. J. A. Smith, Police A. G. Club and John Smith, M.M.E.D., acting-commander of the club.

MAN'S MORALE IMPORTANT IN WORLD TODAY

Optimist International President Stresses Need—Officers Installed

The importance of men's morale is more appreciated during the present world conflict than ever before in history. John N. Free of Wichita, Kansas, president of Optimist International, said in an address at a banquet of the Optimist club of Edmonton, Saturday night in the Macdonald hotel.

Free, vice-principal speaker and honor guest, was met by a large number of new officers of the Edmonton club who were installed. He was accompanied by Mrs. Free. Officers installed to head the club for the year 1941-42 were Winifred Hamilton, president; A. Stewart, vice-president; George Perry, secretary; Louis La Fiebre, treasurer; and Charles L. Smith, publicist. Clifford Lee, vice-president in charge of membership, and Joseph Lemmon, retiring president, also were present.

At the banquet, which was held at the Macdonald hotel, Free, who is a member of the club, said that the morale of the world is more important today than ever before. He said that the morale of the world is more important today than ever before. He said that the morale of the world is more important today than ever before.

War Services Fund May Reach $80,000 Figure: Contributions Pour In Edmonton's Canadian War Services Fund swept over the $75,000 quota on Saturday as donations from individuals and staffs of city business houses poured into the central committee offices.

It is anticipated that the $80,000 mark will be reached when all subscriptions have been received from city donors.

City and county returns indicate that Northern Alberta is doing well in reaching its quota of $100,000. It is confident this amount will be realized now that organization in the county can be carried out. The fund has been initiated by the city and county, and is being carried out by a few days ago.
